FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

CAMP AT SILVER CITY, IDAHO Co., I. T.,
February 4th, 1866.

The winters usually witness not more than from six to twelve inches of snow at this point, which remains on the ground not more than from two to three weeks at the longest. So say those who have wintered here before; while upon the mountains on either side in the direction of Warren's and Florence the snow is often found to the depth of six or seven feet on a level. The weather is really much more mild along the river than upon the mountains and in the mountain basins. But this season has furnished us with about four feet of snow, which has remained with us most of the time for the last two months, and the cold has been very severe, with a few days of exception. As may be readily surmised, operations upon the quartz lodes have been very much limited, and prospecting for new discoveries has been attended with but little success. One new lead was discovered about the last of November, which bears the name of the "Secret," and which is located upon the south side of Salmon river, and near the North Idaho. It is supposed by some that it is nothing more than a slide from the latter. An incline shaft has been sunk upon it about thirty feet in depth, without developing the fact whether or not it is distinct from the North Idaho. Numerous claims have been located and recorded upon its supposed extensions.

Locations have also been made upon another vein of quartz on the north side of the river and above the Liddell & Harper Company and records were made under the name of the "Brother Jonathan." When the cold abates and the snow disappears, the character of these new veins will be the better traced and made known.

Upon the Liddell and Harper lead and its extensions, but little has been done contrary to my predictions in my former letters, although I yet think that prior to the first of June, a greater portion of the work I promised will have been done. The claims on the Merritt & Clary extension of this lead have been opened so as to disclose the vein there to be about six feet in width. As might be expected, the proprietors appear to be much elated with their prospects. The Nez Perces Company have commenced their tunnel but have made but little progress, owing to the severe weather and the hardness of the rock they encountered near the face of the opening. They will prosecute their work as the weather will permit. Hungean & Co. have also commenced a tunnel, as have Combs & Masterson, both upon the disputed ground.

The companies upon the western extension of this lead, have, as yet, been unable to trace the vein, although, before the falling of the snow, they made much effort. It is hoped their efforts will be crowned with better success hereafter.

We number about thirty persons located in this camp. Nine log cabins constitute our dwellings, located in such proximity to our claims, as to render access to them easy. We occasionally venture out of them into the snow, as we need fuel and our social qualities induce us to be neighborly. On some occasions we have ventured out upon the mountains in pursuit of game, such as deer, mountain sheep, elk, rabbits and grouse. Of these, except elk, some have been killed of each variety. But hunting has been attended with many hardships, and with but little success. The steepness of the mountains, the precipitous cliffs, the snow slides and the great depth of the snow, all forbid ease, and take away much of the pleasure that would otherwise result from hunting excursions in these mountains. Mountain sheep are abundant, and may be seen on the sides of the mountains and among the overhanging cliffs in flocks of from three or four up to one hundred in number. Their range is, for the most part, where access by hunters is extremely difficult, if not impracticable, and they are ever alive to every presentiment of danger from the rifle of the hunter, and consequently keep themselves beyond the reach of the best marksmen. Occasionally, however, they are surprised and one or two killed. The deep snows upon the summits force them to seek a lower altitude, and then they are sometimes killed.

March 10th.—My intention to keep you posted in relation to matters here has been good, but no opportunity to send you letters has occurred since I commenced this letter till now. The express arrived yesterday from below with dates of the OREGONIAN up to February 23d. They were welcome, I can assure you. Our winter has been long and severe, but spring now dawns, and a little life is now shown among the quartz men, and claims are being prospected with some vigor. The tunnel of the Harper & Liddell company on that lead has disclosed some rock of great richness in both gold and silver, and disclosures of other openings on the same lead establish the fact that the lead is of good length and abounding in both gold silver. The veins sides as the openings are deepened from the surface; and all the characteristics of a true fissure vein disclosed. Parties who one month ago would have sold out their interests for a small sum, now refuse sales for less than $75 to $100 per foot. The vein has been uncovered westward since my last about 2,000 feet, at intervals of short distance from each other, and hopes and expectations are of the most exhilarating character. Of the Secret lead, some further developments have been made. An opening has been made on the line and dip of the casing rock to the depth of some 40 feet. But little ore has been found, and that was not very rich, only assaying about $20 in silver and $4 in gold to the ton. But the casing and the appearances of the rock obtained possess all the characteristics of the casing and rock from the Poorman ledge in Owyhee, as compared by good miners and chemists. Great confidence is entertained in the the richness of this vein at the depth of 75 feet.

The great depth of the snow has prevented surface prospecting to any extent, along the line of this lead up to the present time, since its discovery. But now the snow is gradually disappearing from the sides of the mountain upon which it is situated, and during the present month much will be done towards tracing this vein by its surface croppings.

The North Idaho is still under the snow, and work has been suspended upon it for some time past, but will soon be resumed.

We confidently expect that what has been done here in relation to quartz, will induce men from outside to come here with capital to aid us in extracting and reducing the metallic ores of this section, and that, with reasonable expectations, they will not be disappointed. Portland may come in for a share in these investments, as the product of these quartz leads must necessarily become directly tributary to that place. I would not urge Portland men to make investments until they had visited us and made personal examinations for themselves. But if they do visit us, we are confident our leads will disclose to them all that we could desire.

In Florence the snow is reported to be about seven feet deep now, while here, only about five miles distant Eastward, and within one mile of Salmon River, it is nearly all gone, and wild flowers are blossoming on the sunny points of the mountain. Salmon river itself is sending down drifts of ice from the colder regions to the Eastward. Altogether

The Voice of Connecticut.

Connecticut goes again for the Union and against the Democracy. If there was any Northern State which the Democrats could claim or hope to carry, that State was Connecticut. The elections there have always been very close. In 1864 Lincoln had only about 2,000 majority in a vote of 86,000. The majority for Hawley, Union candidate for Governor, is small, but it is glory enough to carry the State even by a small majority against the formidable combination which the Union party had to oppose. The President threw the weight of his influence in favor of the Democratic party, and all the vast patronage of the Government went against Gen. Hawley. A triumph under such circumstances is a triumph indeed. The Union men of the North intend to remain true to themselves and to the country. The Copperheads cannot carry a single Northern State. The Democratic party is powerless except in those States where rebellion lately flourished. Union men of Oregon! the loyal States still repudiate the Democratic party; see to it that your State does the same!

TRIUMPH OF THE EXTREMISTS.—The old secession wing of the Democratic party led by O'Meara and Fay, had full control of the Copperhead Convention yesterday. No one whose Democracy was not above suspicion—that is to say, no one who could not stand the Jo. Teal test—had the slightest chance for a nomination. The result was a complete triumph for O'Mears (now beyond question the leader of the party), and for that portion of the Democracy who adhered to the faith through the dark hours when Jeff. Davis, seconded by a little band of Northern Democrats, struggled so hard to "roll back the tide of Abolitionism." But while the extremists have gained a triumph, a portion of their party brethren are more than disgusted—they are seething wrath, and take occasion to relieve themselves by volleys of expletives such as Democrats know well how to use. The "conservative" Democracy are not represented on the ticket; the secession wing have everything. To accompany the ticket the Columbia county resolutions should have been adopted as a platform. The thing would have then been complete.

State Items.

The State Journal of the 31st ult. says: "Considerable excitement existed in Springfield precinct during the past week, on account of the mysterious disappearance of a Mr. Shelly, residing about five miles above Springfield. It appears that Mr. Shelly was recently married, and a few days afterward left home for the ostensible purpose of coming to this place. Nothing was heard of him for some days, when suspicion was aroused that he had been foully dealt with. Inquiries were made, when it was ascertained that he had not left his section of country by either of the routes. The neighbors in the vicinity met together and instituted a search for the body of young Shelly, but, so far as we have been able to learn, without success; they however, found sufficient evidence of his having been murdered, to warrant them in arresting a person on whom suspicion rested. The search for the body was still being prosecuted at last accounts. The particulars of the evidence found we have not learned."

Rev. D. Rutledge, formerly of Salem and later of this city, has been transferred from the Oregon Conference of the M. E. Church, to that of Alabama and Georgia. He is stationed at Atlanta, Georgia.

The Mountaineer says Frank Tompkins, for stabbing a man at the Dalles, has had an examination and is held to bail in $500, to answer in the Circuit Court.

The State Journal says that Mr. Pengra, Supt. of the O. C. M. Road Company started out last week to place hands to work on the road.

The Union ticket nominated at Empire City on the 19th ult. for Coos county, is as follows: County Judge, G. Hall, County Commissioners, A. C. Rogers and R. W. Nosler, Treasurer, Henry Wyckoff, Sheriff, A. J. Moody, Clerk, David Morse, Jr., Assessor, Charles Larrelore, School Superintendent, Anson Rogers, Coroner, Jonathan Hodson; Union County Committee, S. D. Sewell, A. B. Collver, F. G. Lockhart.

Mr. Oliver T. Smith of Forest Grove and Rev. J. S. Griffin of Hillsboro, are intending to start on the Montana this evening for a visit to the Eastern States. They are both among the oldest settlers of this coast, Mr. Smith having been here since 1838 and Mr. Griffin since 1839. The latter has now in his possession the first printing press brought to Oregon, that upon which was printed the Evangelical Unionist at Hillsboro, in 1848. It was brought from the Sandwich Islands some time prior to 1839, and was used in the printing of tracts, &c., used in the Missionary operations of that period. Mr. Griffin is going to Connecticut and Mr. Smith to Illinois.

BY STATE TELEGRAPH

SALEM, April 5.—There is great dissatisfaction manifested in this city at the result of both the Union and Democratic conventions of this State in their nominations. These include the United States vs. Missouri the test oath case, and that involving the question of the blockade. In addition to these, the docket contains about 350 other cases. The Court at the first Monday adjourned announced about eighty decisions.

Trumbull on the Civil Rights Bill.

CHICAGO, April 5.—Trumbull's speech on the Civil Rights bill yesterday, occupied nearly three hours and a half. He first replied at length to the legal objections to the bill raised by the President. To the objection that States are unrepresented, he answered: "Well, sir, whose fault is that States are not represented? Whose fault is it that twenty-five loyal States which have stood by the Union and Constitution are to be deprived of their right to legislate? Sir, it is no fault of the twenty-five that the fact of most States having rebellious State Governments, is to take from the Government the right to legislate, why, sir, does the criminal is to take advantage of his crime, and the innocent are to be punished for the guilty. If we are to wait for eleven States, must not we wait for Texas? Will anybody pretend that when a State gets into a war in the hands of enemies, it was entitled to representation in our Congress? If not, shall we not inquire whether it has got out of those hands into the hands of loyal men? Sir, the proposition that no bill is to be passed because certain States are unrepresented, would be utterly destructive of the Government."

Trumbull concluded as follows: "Congress, in the passage of the bill now under consideration, sought no controversy with the President. The bill was framed with a view to carry out what was supposed to be the views of the President, and was submitted to him before its introduction into the Senate. I am not about to relate the private declarations of the President, but it is right that the people should know that in conversations which exists between him and Congress in reference to this measure, is of his own accord. Soon after Congress met it became apparent that there was a difference of opinion between the President and some members of Congress in regard to the condition of the rebellious States and the rights to be secured to the freedmen. Feeling the importance of harmonious action and being anxious to sustain the President, for whom I had always entertained the highest respect, I had frequent interviews with him during the early part of the session. Without mentioning anything said by him, I may with perfect safety show that I had prepared a bill substantially as that now reported with the President's objections, and after the bill was framed and a printed copy was furnished him, and subsequently, when it was reported that he was hesitating about signing the Freedmen's Bureau Bill, he was informed of the provisions of the Civil Rights Bill then pending in the House, and the hope expressed that if he had any objections to any of its provisions, he would make known what they might be remedied. And it was stated there was believed to be no opposition on the part of Congress, and certainly not on my part, to have bills presented to him which he could not approve. He never intimated, so far as I know, the least objection to any provision of the bill till after its passage, and how could he, consistently with himself? The bill was framed and was, I supposed, in entire harmony with his views, and entirely in harmony with what he was then, and has since, been doing in protecting the freedmen's rights. It is manifest that unless this bill can be passed, nothing can be done to protect them in their liberty and their rights. Whatever may have been the opinion of the President at the time, as to good faith, in requiring security to the freedmen of their liberty and prosperity it is now manifest from the character of his objections to this bill that he will approve no measure that will accomplish the object. I have never thought suffrage any more necessary to the liberty of a freedman than of a non-voting white, whether child or female, but if he has liberty under the Constitution he is entitled to whatever is necessary to secure it. He is entitled to have or bear ballot or bayonet. If bill now before us and which goes no further than to secure his civil rights cannot be passed, then the Constitutional amendment declaring freedom to all men is a cheat and a delusion.

The Press on the Peace Proclamation.

CHICAGO, April 5.—The following are the opinions of the New York press on the Peace Proclamation. The Times says: This interpretation of the present status of the South virtually places South Carolina and New York on the same footing in all that appertains to the relations to the other States and to the National Government. The Proclamation carries with it this serious mischief, the slight infringement upon the high prerogative which Congress holds to determine the rights of individual claimants to seats in the respective branches of that body. It simply announces to the Southern States that they are once more intrusted with the maintenance of law and order within their own borders, and to the world at large that the unity of the Government at large was restored when it became consistent with the rights and immunities of the individual States. In view of our commercial and financial position we cannot regard this great executive act without satisfaction. In view even of the differences which temporarily estrange members of Congress from the President, the Proclamation will help reconcile men to find a basis of honorable compromise, and in view of the possibility of external trouble, however remote, theart must commend itself to patriotic men as one of wisdom.

The Herald regards the proclamation as a defiance hurled at Congress. It says: The President alone refuses to end and maintain the great national principles and policy of the party that carried the country through the war. Abandoned by Congress, he has pursued to their logical conclusions, without reference to that body, those principles enunciated in his proclamation of presidential union. All the States have now since the ratification of the amendment of secession by the Texas convention done all that lay in their power towards taking their proper positions in the Union. It only remains for the President to do the balance on behalf of the country. His clear duty was to pronounce their complete restoration, which he has unreservedly done. He has done this entirely without regard to the present course of Congress, and really in defiance of it. The constant and repeated declaration of the party to which he owes his position, the voice of the whole people marked but this line of conduct with unmistakable distinctness, and left him no option.

The Commercial Advertiser says the President duly selected the anniversary of the great exhilarating event of the war to proclaim peace restored and the great insurrection ended. The last charge breaks down at once the long continued suspension of the habeas corpus and takes away from Congress and Cabinet minister the plea of a war power and military necessity, by which so much legislation has been inspired and so many arbitrary arrests were sought to be justified. The proclamation is a sign of a return to a healthy, normal condition of affairs. It has been said that what statesmanship is required to restore genuine peace and real harmony than was necessary to conduct the operations of the gigantic war. The events of the year favor this. Partisan wrangling, and personal ambition necessarily leading to the clash of arms, have suddenly put in new strength and growth to monstrous and danger as proportions. The great of this hour is not less than the darkest hours of the war and never in our history, were wise, conciliation and reparation as necessary than now. As we approach the 4th anniversary of the death of our martyr President, let us catch the inspiration of the last message, and with charity to all, and malice towards none, with firmness in the right as we strive to finish the work we are in, [illegible] The just basis of the future the party schemes and plans of individuals are as nothing, and the only will have an apotheosis in American history, who are found true to the freedom of their liberty and prosperity it is now manifest from the character of his objections to this bill that he will approve no measure that will accomplish the object. I have never thought suffrage any more necessary to the liberty of a freedman than of a non-voting white, whether child or female, but if he has liberty under the Constitution he is entitled to whatever is necessary to secure it. He is entitled to have or bear ballot or bayonet. If bill now before us and which goes no further than to secure his civil rights cannot be passed, then the Constitutional amendment declaring freedom to all men is a cheat and a delusion.

THE WEEKLY OREGONIAN.

THE WEEKLY OREGONIAN is published this morning. It contains the latest telegraphic news from the East and Central States, a selection of the best articles appearing in THE DAILY OREGONIAN,—full and reliable news from the Mines, and the most copious commercial information published by any paper in the State.

The average amount of reading matter in the WEEKLY OREGONIAN is double that published by any other Journal in Oregon; and in the particular of Commercial statistics and the Markets we aim to make it the most reliable paper published in matters pertaining to Oregon interests.

TERMS—Single copies 12½ cents, or $3 00 per year, to any part of the United States, or British Columbia.

[illegible] OF THE MONTANA.—If any suppose that the ship Montana is likely to be bought off, or quit [illegible] on the route upon which her owners have placed her, they will do well to look at the figures to learn [illegible] nothing of the amount of business she does, then ask themselves if there is any probabilities of her leaving [illegible] again at the mercy of an arbitrarily monopoly. The [illegible] is a permanent fixture in this trade. The Pat[illegible] known the world over as proprietors of the Anchor Line, have not only established many trades long [illegible] but have never given up one on which they have [illegible] especially when begun under the circumstances of the present case which interests the people of Oregon, Idaho, Washington and Montana, and we may well say eventually will interest portions of British Columbia and Russian America. The many enterprises now on foot in this region of country are indebted to the Anchor Line in a very great favor—that could not possibly have been [illegible] under the system in which the business of the [illegible] was conducted. But while this is so [illegible] of the Montana has been by no means a [illegible] enterprise. Her last trip from San Francisco, arriving here on [illegible] Portland three trips from San Francisco, arriving here on [illegible] passage thirty three days since—in which time [illegible] landed twenty four hundred and fifty two tons of [illegible] and six hundred and fifty two passengers at [illegible] a profit of not less than $10 000. She is [illegible] ship—and it will be seen is paying fairly [illegible] at rates which none can say are exor[illegible] is yet in her infancy—but while the State [illegible] valuable resources to develop that ought to be [illegible] on the most liberal inducement was there [illegible] people to enterprises of a public character [illegible] we were being ground down, and held in a [illegible] than ever despotic rule held a people, [illegible] was pursued toward us by the steamship [illegible] A few practical business men, who felt as [illegible] that better things must come to enliven our [illegible] sels, invested all they had to develop [illegible] along our greatest artery of trade, but even [illegible] last year, felt a doubt of the ultimate success of [illegible] enterprises, when we were told every day [illegible] offices were being opened from every executive [illegible] of the coast, to gain a [illegible] to our existing dis[illegible] avoid the Columbia river. It was not because [illegible] O. R. N. Company had not made liberal provision to [illegible] and their supplies, but by referring back to [illegible] refreshing our memories, we all can see that [illegible] turned to the tariffs and the rates de[illegible] Nothing reasonably can be asked. Then those of our people [illegible] a desire to see Oregon [illegible] prosper, wished for [illegible] line of steamships. The matter was thor[illegible] and often resurred to, but lacking [illegible] of money to enter upon the plan, [illegible] to remain as they were. It was a [illegible] to the material prosperity of our country, [illegible] as it would not be felt, but by a few [illegible] we heard of the promised opposition. We could easily credit the report at first, but subsequent events [illegible] of the truth of the statements, and we now [illegible] active with like [illegible] and the [illegible] to the [illegible] parts of all the [illegible] The [illegible] that have [illegible] tribunaries of [illegible] to bring us visitors to Utah, Montana and British [illegible] have not been wooed in vain, but, to look [illegible] over, one to it that the parties who are de[illegible] the result for the change in our affairs, got [illegible] stock. It belongs to the Anchor Line, and soon [illegible]

[illegible] the steamer [illegible] arrived in the city from points above. Mr. [illegible] of Walla Walla; Mr. [illegible] Odell, of the [illegible] and other gentlemen who are engaged in the [illegible] to Montana, [illegible] were very [illegible] with the country over which they have [illegible] and are decidedly of the opinion that the route [illegible] by the Columbia river is the best practicable. The steamer [illegible] Lake will soon be ready [illegible] Lake has been found to be navi[illegible] than was at first [illegible] the [illegible] very satisfactorily. The road [illegible] which is an easy wagon road, is but 134 miles [illegible] the head of the lake, and is abundantly [illegible] with wood, water and grass. [illegible] Lodge will be held in this city for the [illegible] The [illegible] have been [illegible] and much enthusiasm has been [illegible] the District for the ensuing year. [illegible] Senator Wilkes [illegible] he takes any [illegible] the petition was not presented [illegible] we are able to learn. The [illegible] of [illegible] would eventually work well by tug boat on the bar and river, [illegible] be placed there and [illegible] managed.

[illegible] BY THE RAINIER.—The steamship Pacific, which [illegible] for San Francisco last night, taken the following cargo: 1860 boxes apples; 30 sacks onions; 275 sacks [illegible]; 84 rolls [illegible]; 14 packages furniture; 8 boxes [illegible]; 1 iron safe; 85 hides; 8 packages furs; 10 cases [illegible]; 1 case quicks; 10 packages [illegible]. 20 tons [illegible]. Some few of the articles, as will be seen, are re[illegible]. The [illegible] to amounted to $124,000 [illegible] by parties as follows:

[illegible], Fargo & Co. [illegible]	$60,000
[illegible] & Tilton, [illegible]	40 000
[illegible] Brothers, [illegible]	18,000
Total [illegible]	$124,000

ARRIVAL OF THE BARK ALLEN.—The clipper bark Ethan Allen, Capt. H P Snow, arrived at noon yesterday in [illegible] of the steamer Julia. The Ethan Allen left San [illegible] on the 23d of March; arrived off Columbia [illegible] on the 28th day off and on three days in a heavy gale, and then waited for a pilot three days more [illegible] was [illegible] without a pilot; came to anchor [illegible] in on the 3d of April. She has a full cargo of as [illegible] the 4567 packages of which are consign[illegible] to Messrs. McCracken, Merrill & Co. 215 to Messrs [illegible] Russell & Co, and 21 to Messrs Burgren & [illegible]

[illegible] RIGHT.—We were shown yesterday, at McCrack[illegible], Merrill & Co's, some very excellent sugars, received by the bark A. A. Eldridge now discharging from Honolulu. We have received freely of sugars the past year from the islands but we have never seen any to compare favorably with the [illegible] are taken by the [illegible] They bear a close resemblance to the Manilla [illegible] and the planters continue to furnish as good an article as they do now, their chances of securing all the trade of the Pacific coast is undoubted, or at least decidedly fa[illegible]

[illegible] MEETING.—A very large crowd assembled last evening at the Theatre to listen to speeches [illegible] the Union party and the Union candidates. Hon. T. [illegible] was called to preside and on taking the chair [illegible] a few appropriate and effective remarks. [illegible] was called and made the [illegible] of the [illegible] His remarks were delivered in his [illegible] style, and many of his hits were telling. [illegible] Ship Montana, Captain Kelly, will clear this [illegible] for San Francisco, from the wharf at the foot of [illegible] Street.

[illegible] COURT.—County Court, Judge Magnuson presiding, will [illegible] this morning. Judges are to be appointed to serve at the approaching election.

NOT SO.—Some few persons construe our prejudice against the miserable McAdamize[illegible] into a hate against the contractors, Messrs. J. H. Perry & Co. We have none other than the kindest of feelings for those gentlemen, and wish it understood that whatever may be said regarding the McAdamizing [illegible] nothing personal to them is intended. They are contractors and would no doubt as quickly take a contract to pave the streets with twenty dollar pieces as they would to pave with stones if they got their pay. The fact that they have the contract for putting down the Morrison st. First street does not look as though they were wedded to the theory set forth by Mr. Lamb.

PROPERTY DESTROYED.—A somewhat extensive conflagration was squelched by the firemen last night before any damage was done. The shop of Goddard, a blacksmith, corner of Alder and Third streets. The fire originated through carelessness of the blacksmith working at one of the forges who had thrown the cinders and ashes of the fire next to the boards of the building. Such matters are inexcusable and we trust the experience of last night may serve as a warning to all parties who are given to neglect.

REV. MR. STRONACH.—Of San Francisco, now on a visit to Oregon, will preach in the vestry of the Baptist Church, to-morrow—morning and evening at the usual hours of worship viz: 10½ o'clock A. M. and 7 o'clock P. M. We understand it is proposed by a number of our citizens to organize a liberal Church in this city.

POLICE RECORDS.—The docket of the Recorder's Court was yesterday black and white with two re-drunks—Charles Miller was sent up for two days and Owen O'Connor all nine. The trial of the woman Anna McMahon was continued until to day.

HARD A FIT.—A stranger fell upon the sidewalk on Front street in a fit last evening. He was kindly cared for by the Police, who administered restoratives but the stranger was a severe and a pitiful one. We did not learn his name.

THE SHIPPING.—The bark W B Scranton is discharging at the foot of Yamhill street. The A A Eldridge, Kilburn Allen and steamship Montana are at Couch's wharf. The water in the river has so receded as to give one in the lower side of the city generally.

RAIN.—The weather which has been very pleasant an[illegible] summer like for two days past changed last evening and we had a regular old fashioned shower.

TROPICAL FRUITS, ETC.—H. Martin & Co at the foot of Washington street advertise tropical fruits, gold fish etc, received by the bark A A Eldridge.

Democratic State Convention

FRIDAY April 6th, 1866

The convention met at 10 o'clock, A. M.

Mr Strong of Multnomah, said that Mr Aaron Rose, of Douglas county, had arrived with two of the proxies of that delegation heretofore absent, and moved that he be permitted to cast their votes in this convention, which was agreed to.

Mr Ladd of Multnomah, said he wished that Mr Smith, one of the candidates before this Convention, might have an opportunity to explain his position, as several of the delegates were not certain what were his views on some points in the platform—the civil rights bill for one and perhaps others. He moved that Mr Smith be permitted to explain.

Mr Morford, of Umatilla, thought the candidates had explained their positions pretty fully and the convention ought now to go on with its business. If one candidate had an opportunity to explain, all might want to do so and then the convention would be detained longer than he for one, would willingly consent to.

Mr Miller of Marion favored the motion. He desired that Mr Smith should have an opportunity to explain, as I was perfectly willing that all candidates might have a chance to define their positions.

Several gentlemen expressed themselves as opposed to taking up the time of the convention with speeches from candidates. They wanted to go on and get through the business as soon as possible that they might return home.

Mr Ladd said that some of the southern delegates wished to hear from Mr Smith, and at their instance he had made the motion.

Mr Conser said that the charges against Mr Smith were that he was in favor of the re election of J W Nesmith to the U. S. Senate, and that he was a member of the Methodist Church North. He wished him to have a chance to explain.

Mr Strong wanted to know if the Convention were about to enter upon a political organization, and if it were going to delegate to the Congressional elect, the election of an United States Senator? It made no difference to him what might be the religious belief of the candidate. If he stood on the platform, it was quite sufficient for him.

Messrs Bennett, of Benton, and Page, of Multnomah reiterated Mr. Strong's sentiment, and Mr Page said that if Mr. Smith were in the State Legislature he (Page) was certain he would not vote for any man for United States Senator who had at any time connected with Black Republicanism.

Mr Ladd withdrew his motion.

Mr Watt offered the following resolution, and moved that it be made a part of the platform:

Resolved, That we adhere to the great American Monroe doctrine of non-interruption by our trans-atlantic neighbors with the political wants of this continent, as a cherished Democratic doctrine.

The motion prevailed.

Mr Strong moved that no man be nominated without receiving a majority of all the votes of this convention, which prevailed.

The nomination of a candidate for Congress being announced in order,

Mr Miller, of M[illegible] nominated Hon. J. S. Smith, of Marion.

Mr. Steers, of Jackson, " Hon J. D Fay, of Jackson.

Mr. Wilson, of Wasco, " Hon. N. H. Gaines, of Wasco.

THE PRESIDENT'S AUDIENCE.—The Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune thus describes the crowd to whom the President made his late disgraceful speech at Washington:

Surely now Washington is Babylon. You have read the accounts of Mr Johnson's speech—but no account has yet told half the truth. I happened to be on the ground that yelled frantically over Andy. My curiosity to hear and see him as I saw it made my brain forever a theatre. It is not more than five minutes' walk from the door of the White House and during that time the shouting was wild. There were Mosby's men and Washington rebels who had fought in Virginia and Maryland regiments during the war and who had returned from hog and hominy, and long marches with Lee to get fine places from the Departments. Then we had the crafty, moldy, musty curious race of Washington office holders who have been in office under every administration since they were old enough to sign a pay roll. What jolly rats they are! What noses they have! How they divine the precise moment when any political ship is about to sink! Go against the President! Not they—as they pushed their jolly way with the jolly crowd that were bent on a speech from the jolly Andy. Mixed in with all were representatives of that dreadful crowd of roughs who used to make Washington a most unenviable place and made special policemen necessary on every election day.

When they passed in front of the State Department and swarmed into the President's carriage paths and crowded around the White House the scene was strange and amusing, though to me very sad. Well said a friend who strolled with me: "Lee has taken Washington after all." I ventured the suggestion that his last visit to the city was to arrange the movement. Then to hear the comments. Its in the blood, by God" said one sallow gray back "when a man is once for the South he always for the South; and he can't go back on his father no how. If Johnson is a poor white, he is true to his State." Another philosopher, who pronounced South, "South," and said "Look yu," for look here, ventured to say that South knew what he was about, and did not kill Lincoln for nothing. A still meager crowd were seizing on the negress, cuffing them, kicking their shins, and bestowing upon them all manner of opprobrium. "Say, Sambo," said one as he crushed the hat of a poor African over his face, "is your name Sumner, do you come from Massachusetts?" The execrations heaped on Congress were frightful. "I wish to Heaven," mused one of the crowd who seemed to be browned by a Southern sun, and who had a Carolina patois, "Andy Johnson was a soldier, and would call for volunteers, I guess he would get enough to drive those Congressmen off Capitol Hill." "Napoleon did it," said one. "Yes, and Cromwell," replied another. "And if Johnson," replied the first, "were to do it, and hang the Senate on the trees around the Chamber, he would be immortal." "That he would," said twenty; and the twenty proclaimed their purpose to volunteer.

Around the President, as he spoke, were a rare crowd of carrion birds. The fancy seized me as I stood in the crowd, and heard the howling and teeth gnashing of His Excellency while they grinned and shrieked, that these men were carrion-birds indeed, hovering over their victim, and only waiting for his fall that they might devour him. Oh, Andrew Johnson of 1866, Andrew Johnson of the Senate Chamber, Andrew Johnson of the dark December days when Southern Unionism was taboo, and then alone the bright star that kept alive a nation's hope, be thyself again, be a man; once more! Look on that gang of devils around you! They offer you the kingdoms of the earth if you will only worship them, if you will but bow down and call them master. Be warned! America has had a Judas; let it not have a Lucifer.

A REMINISCENCE OF THE "KEARSARGE" AND "ALABAMA" FIGHT.—A writer in the Cornhill Magazine, who has had opportunities of conversation with some of Semmes' old crew, gives the following interesting reminiscence of the fight between the Alabama and Kearsarge, from which it appears that the rebels were left to drown when the pirate sank:

"I thought you had been in the Confederate navy?" "I was," said the man; "I was with Semmes on board the Alabama, in the naval brigade and block-ade-running, and in the Alabama all the while he was a navy-bird then." "But not when the sank?—I suppose I mistook." "Well, I was, and we had a row with him by the Deerhound." "It was a pity they didn't sink him too!" I suggestingly asked. "If was that," replied Ale Mason, he didn't care about swimming. "I suppose that it was the eleven-inch guns that did that?" "Oh, no," said he, coming to a kind of a confessional; 'we never had any chance, we had no gunners to compare with the Kearsarge's. Our gunners fired by rolling, and when they had the gun loaded, fired it off blind. They never changed the elevation of their guns during all the fight, and the Kearsarge was working up to us all the while, taking advantage of every time she was hid by smoke to work a little nearer, and then her gunners took aim for every shot.' 'Then it isn't true that the Alabama tried to board the Kearsarge?' 'No, sir, she did her best to get away from her from the time the fight commenced. We knew well that if we got in reach of her Dahlgren howitzers she would sink us in ten minutes.'

"But," I asked, "don't you believe that Semmes supposed he would whip the Kearsarge when he went out to fight her?" "No; he was bullied into it, and took good care to leave all his valuables on shore, and that is the reason he went through the fight. I saw him put it on, and I thought if it was wise in him it wouldn't be foolish in me, and so I put one on, too. When Semmes saw that the ship was going down, he told us all to swim who could, and I was one of the first to jump into the water, and we all made for the Deerhound. I was a long way ahead of Semmes, and when I came up to the Deerhound's boat they asked me if I was Semmes before they would take me in. I said I wasn't, and then they asked me what I was on the Alabama. Said I, 'No matter what I was on the Alabama, I shall be a dead man soon if you don't take me in.' They asked me again if I was an officer or a seaman, and wouldn't take me in until I told them that I was an officer.' 'But,' said I, 'did they actually refuse to pick up seamen and leave them to drown?' 'They did that,' replied he wrathfully, and probably not very correctly, 'and as soon as they had Semmes on board they made tracks as fast as they know how, and left everybody else to drown or be picked up by the Kearsarge.'"

THE PIRATE SHENANDOAH.—The Melbourne correspondent of the New York Herald relates the account of an effort which was made by loyal Americans to destroy the rebel pirate Shenandoah on her visit to that port:

Upon the arrival of the pirate Shenandoah a league was at once formed for her destruction. Information of the intention was sent to a certain number of hardy Americans at the diggings. In an incredibly short time sufficient volunteers were secured to carry out the scheme. The prominent parties chartered a small steamer in port and the volunteers were ordered to report for duty. The men came forward and received their instructions. Each man was to provide himself with a pistol and an American axe handle, the former to be used in case of extreme necessity, but the latter for actual work in knocking down the crew after boarding, and sufficiently stupefying them until well secured and sent below, to prevent alarm. As soon as the boarding party was in possession the chartered steamer was to be cut adrift, and the Shenandoah, with her own crew, was to sail for an American port. Everything was in readiness for the work, and was conducted with such secrecy that even the owners of the chartered steamer were not aware of the service in which she was to be employed. The next night was the appointed time to make the attack, but unfortunately on the morning of that day the pirate went into dock for repairs.

Undaunted by this defeat some of the same party planned a new scheme. The purpose now was to destroy the pirate by a torpedo placed in front of the dock. In order to elude detection this means of destruction was arranged in a more scientific manner. For instance, the powder was purchased by different persons in different quantities, without the knowledge of each other. The man who constructed the case of the torpedo knew nothing of the one who was to charge it, and the latter knew nothing of the persons who were to convey it to the wharf, and these were to know nothing of those who were to take it off while those who planted it were to know nothing of those who were to discharge it, and others on watch. The scheme worked perfectly, and the torpedo was planted directly in the path of the steamer as she would float out. Watchmen were on duty night and day, and the person who was to set the torpedo off was concealed within one hundred yards of the pirate. Owing to delay in completing the repairs the pirate did not leave the dock at the time first announced, and for nearly a week the men at the torpedo impatiently awaited her. At length the time did arrive. The pirate swung from her supports and slowly moved out. At the proper time the lanyard attached to the torpedo was pulled, but no explosion followed, and the Shenandoah rode safely out into the stream. The disappointment of the parties was great, but the ship, even now, would not have escaped had her departure been less sudden.

INSURRECTIONARY.—The Democratic papers are calling on the Democracy to guard President Johnson's life against assassination! Assassination is no part of the creed or practice of the Union party. The cold blooded butchery of Union soldiers and Presidential assassinations are among the articles of faith of Southern rebels and sympathizers. Burning hotels and hanging innocent negroes was the work of Northern sympathizers with those same interests. Had it not been for the strong arms and true hearts of the men who now form the Union party, and their faithful allies the blacks of the South, President Johnson would long since have been put out of the way. The same men will protect him now as even though they do not agree with his policy.

INDIAN POLICY.—The Lawrence (Kansas) Tribune says: We learn that the arrangements recently made by treaty with the Indians for their removal to the south side of the Arkansas river are now being carried out, and those Indians are being removed to their new homes. If any of them persist in remaining or harassing the trade of the Plains they are to be destroyed or driven off. There will a force of about 5,000 troops at Fort Riley for the enforcement of these arrangements. Many of the chiefs are said to be conscious of the fact that their race must settle out unless they quit their nomadic way of life and they are determined to induce their people to remove and engage in pastoral and agricultural pursuits.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

WEEKLY REVIEW.

PORTLAND, April 6th 1866

The marked decline in gold which has been the prominent theme in financial and commercial circles for some weeks past is very generally attributed to the passage of the Loan Bill in the House of Congress. The rate of gold vibrated for some time between 125¾ and 124¼. Should the bill pass the Senate, a further decline is predicted as the Secretary would then be in a position to commence the funding process at once. Gold on the 28th, was at the lowest point it has touched since August, 1863. On the 29th the market in New York appears to have been excited and gold was quoted at 128, with rumors that the price touched 130. On the 30th the quotations were 131½, and the market very unsettled, with a light business. Our dispatches since that date have shown a steady ruling from 128 to 128, closing yesterday at the latter figure.

While upon this subject we will quote the following from the N. Y. Tribune of March 31st:

"It is stated that the Loan Bill will result in the passage of an act satisfactory to the Secretary of the Treasury, with the exception perhaps, of the foreign clause. Mr McCulloch stands unflinchingly by his Fort Wayne speech and thinks specie payments should be resumed at the earliest practicable moment, and if proper authority is given, will administer his department with Roman zeal as his motto. The Secretary is bent on all sides with speculators, manufacturers and traders who have overloaded themselves with contracts and commodities upon an inflated currency, who assert they will be ruined if their contracts are met and their goods are sold upon the basis of gold. This may be and probably is true but it is equally certain that all those speculators, manufacturers and traders made most of their present wealth at the cost of consumers and tax payers during the rebellion and what they may lose will be restored to them from whom it was taken. The sooner a gold basis is reached the better it will be for the labor of the country and for legitimate business in all departments, and in their letter on Congress cannot act too soon. Paper fortunes and speculators upon paper money and its crossed capital under resumption will fare hard; but this they cannot escape in any event, and delay will only add to the disaster resumption is expected to produce."

In view of these matters the market for Legal Tenders has been considerably altered, and transactions are confined to small amounts for the period passing in review. The money market remains without material alteration. The mining share market is favorably influenced. To-morrow sales will be made of delinquent stocks in the Oregon Company of Santiam.

We have been considerably absorbed during the week with home commercial interests. There has not been a week for years in which so much business has been transacted along our wharves. The amount of freight offered at San Francisco for this trade, at last dates was increasing and increased tunnage was necessary for its accomodation.

The Montague brings a very large and a very valuable cargo. Ships can not safe in risking their merchandize by this vessel, without insurance, as is quite often the case, where confidence is felt in the craft. The Pacific had an average cargo, and we have the barkentine W B Scranton and the bark Nilson Allen, to report, all from San Francisco, heavily laden.

The bark A A Eldridge, which has made an extraordinary trip, being but twelve days from Honolulu to the Columbia river, is now discharging a cargo of superior grades of Sandwich Island sugars, etc., which will pay about $11,000 duties.

The vessels to Victoria for the week, by the schooners Orosby and Pacific, amount to about $5,000. Our commerce in that direction should materially enlarge, and we hope to see steps taken which will give us tunnage at reasonable rates, that we may supply the bulk of all the produce requirements of the Colonies, at least.

The bark Lizz. Jenkins was reported on Monday last as ready to sail, with a full cargo of lumber from Oak Point Mills. The Fallenburg will also sail with a full cargo of lumber, from Young's river, both for San Francisco.

Remarking on the shipment of treasure by the steamer Constitution on the 30th which was the smallest for a long time, being less than half a million dollars, the Bulletin has the following in support of the theory advanced by this paper nearly a year since, that treasure shipments were virtually indicators of the poverty of the coast, rather than of its wealth.

"This diminution in the outward current of gold and silver is due, in part, to light purchases of goods in the Atlantic cities, where prices for most commodities are ruling so high as to leave no margin on importations. The inauguration of new industries is constantly on the increase, and hence every year lessens our dependence on the older States for many articles of prime necessity. As a natural result, the supply of capital in this city is increasing and rates of interest tend in favor of the borrower. In this connection we may add that the capital stock of the Bank of California is about to be increased to $5,000,000. No greater proof of the activity and enterprise of our people is wanting than the fact that all the banks in this city find employment for more capital at remunerative rates than has been placed at their disposal. With an enlargement of the supply of capital and low rates of interest, therefore we may look for a more rapid development of the resources and industries of the coast."

According to the Advertiser of the Victoria papers, a very large smuggling trade is constantly going on between Vancouver and our territory, all being particular by in Liquors and other high-cost and less bulky goods, and as much a revenue force in and about Puget Sound might be employed to good advantage. The legitimate trade of this coast is no doubt considerably restricted by this traffic. It is suggested, and no doubt would be a good plan, for the Navy Department to employ a fleet of small swift steamers to cruise along the coasts and front rivers adjoining the British Possessions to prevent if possible, this illicit business. The presence of the steam revenue cutter Lincoln in these waters, possibly has some connection with the matter. The temptations to carry on a contraband trade, under the present tax and tariff laws, are too great to be resisted by many of our own countrymen, and it is said smuggling is carried on as extensively in various parts of the country as was block ade running during the war.

We observe that eastern capitalists are investing in Colorado for the working of the Iron mines near Golden City and are already erecting works for the manufacture of railroad bars. This new enterprise promises to yield great wealth to the new State. Oregon has Iron mines equal if not superior to those of Colorado and it is to be hoped that the day is not far distant when works will be erected both above and below the city which shall enable us to manufacture our own iron and have some to assist in supplying outward cargoes for vessels on voyages to this port. Our commerce is rapidly increasing and requires us to be engaging in all branches of manufactures.

The Northern Pacific Railroad continues to attract general attention at the East and in England. An article published a few days since in the Commercium, from the Atlantic Monthly is worth a careful perusal, and one St Paul letter has something of interest on the same subject.

Wholesale and Jobbing Prices.

PORTLAND, April 6th, 1866

Business for the most part is active. Shipments to the interior both via the Willamette and the Columbia have been unprecedentedly large. As the season is advancing increased confidence is felt in the prospects of securing a very great portion of the trade of Montana. The fact that the feasibility of the route is now established makes it the more important that we should reiterate that all the advantages for supplying that region of country, when navigation of the Columbia is compared with the Missouri rests with Oregon. Shipments of freight will and silently be laid down at Helena within 40 days, at prices less than those from St Louis. The population east of the Rocky Mountains and west of the Missouri are no longer dependent upon the Atlantic cities for all the principle articles of necessity. The aim to secure for us the trade of Salt Lake bids fair to be successful, and there is no shadow of a doubt but that we are better prepared than other places to supply the region known as Big Bend, hence there is a very extensive field in which our merchants and dealers can operate to advantage.

Woolen and Cotton Goods.

PORTLAND, April 5th, 1866

So far as domestic goods are concerned, no alterations are advised in prices. A fair line trade has continued but the demand for large invoices is light.

We have perused with some interest an article in a late number of Harper's Weekly, which affords much information on cotton—its anticipated product and price under the new order of things at the South.

Assuming that this year's crop, marketed between the 1st of September, 1865, and the 1st of September, 1867, amounts to 3,000,000, the next year's crop may be put down at 3 100,000 bales. For the ten years ending in 1857 the crop averaged about 3,000,000 bales, and the price averaged from 10 to 12 cents per pound for middling uplands. In 1849 the crop was only 2,096,000 bales, while in 1855 it exceeded 3,000,000. The price ranged from 6 to 10 cents per pound. In 1858 cotton culture was stimulated by increased demand and nearly 4,000 000 bales were raised; in 1859 it increased to 4,960,000; and in 1861, last for the war, it is estimated that 5,000,000 bales would have been raised if the market. The price was then 12 to 13 cents per pound for middling uplands.

Middling upland is now worth in New York city 44 and 45 cents per pound, nearly four times its value before the war. It is not likely these figures can be maintained, neither is it probable that the price of cotton will fall back to old figures. It is estimated that the wants of England, France, Germany, and Russia have greatly increased the last four years. Our own consumption has also increased some 700,000 bales to 1,000,000.

If the freedmen and the planters work harmoniously together it is estimated that the crop of 1867 will amount to 4 000,000 bales—the more sanguine estimating it as high as 5 000 000. If we raise 5 000,000 and the price does not fall below 25 cents, the crop will nearly pay our importations from all parts of the world, besides an annual revenue of $30 000,000, from the 5 per cent tax it is proposed to levy on it.
